GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Science, technology and manpower are fundamental to health and have great potential in improving lives locally and around the world. We are funders and shapers enabling others to act and implement. We advocate vigorously but responsibly in our focus of health and related issues. We must be humble and mindful in our actions while seeking and heeding the counsel of outside voices. We accept our cooperating agencies as valued partners and recognize and treat our mutual beneficiaries with respect. We demand honest ethical behavior of ourselves. We treat each other as valued colleagues. Executing our mission requires great stewardship of our resources, collaboration and patience with our cooperating agencies and respect for our mutual recipients. We expect that growth and change are outcomes of our initiatives. We identify a specific point of intervention and apply our efforts aligned with a theory of change. Delivering results with the resources we have been given is of the utmost importance—and we seek and share information about those results
